System Administration for Beginners

Topics List

January 30, 2007

This is a tentative list of topics that are going to be covered in class. Most of the lecture will be dedicated to learning about how commands can be used to achieve a certain goal (e.g., setting up a web server or automating a specific task) rather than detailed, theoretical explanations that aren't necessary at this level (things like this would be covered in the Advanced section).

Several weeks have been reserved for special topics that students may have interest in; if so, please let the course facilitators know what you would like to see covered.
